Debbie Grennan is a highly sought-after and experienced Employment & Discrimination barrister.

Debbie Grennan is highly regarded for her expertise in high-value and complex discrimination and whistleblowing claims, as well as matters relating to equal pay and TUPE.

She regularly receives instructions on behalf of respondent local authorities and the NHS. In addition to her civil court practice, she appears before the Employment Appeal Tribunal (EAT).

Expertise

Employment & Discrimination

Debbie has a balance of claimant and respondent work which covers all aspects of Employment & Discrimination law, as well as Business Protection & Trade Union law. She appears in the Court of Appeal, the Employment Appeal Tribunal, the High Court and County Courts, as well as the Employment Tribunal &

Special Educational Needs (SEND) Tribunal.

Debbie represents parties from public and private sectors. Her work regularly involves complex cases of whistleblowing, Health & Safety, discrimination, Transfer of Undertakings Protection of Employment regulations (TUPE) and related matters, as well as claims in respect of restrictive covenants and directors/fiduciary duties.

She is experienced in dealing with equal pay litigation and has been involved in very large public sector equal pay claims on behalf of both local authority employers and groups of employees, as well as private sector claims relating to large clearing banks.

She advises in respect of Trade Union matters, including issues relating to recognition, collective agreements & industrial action.

Debbie has particular expertise in the area of overlap between Employment and Insolvency law. She also advises and appears in the SEND Tribunal and undertakes Civil Equality Act claims in respect of matters such as the provision of services and education.

Debbie's Employer Clients include Local Authorities, NHS Trusts, Schools, Clearing Banks, Large National & Multinational Businesses and a large number of Solicitors' firms, who appreciate her commercial outlook, pragmatism and ability to quickly get to the heart of the problem finding solutions which work for their organisations.

Her employee clients include professionals from various sectors, from celebrity chefs and football club directors to medical professionals, senior public and private sector directors and employees as well as Legal & HR professionals.

She is regularly instructed to advise in relation to TUPE transfers, restructuring and redundancy processes and changing terms and conditions.

Debbie is renowned for her exceptional client care skills, forensic attention to detail and is a highly respected advocate. She is consistently ranked as a Band 1 Barrister by both Legal 500 & Chambers UK and is actively involved with the key employment law professional groups and associations. Debbie is on the Equality & Human Rights Commission (EHRC) panel of approved barristers.

Investigations

Debbie regularly undertakes internal investigation processes for employer clients (such as disciplinary, grievance, whistleblowing and Health & Safety matters), as well as chairing and determining issues at internal hearings and appeals.

She is also able to provide specialist employment advice in respect of their processes and decisions.

For employees, Debbie has particular expertise in cases which involve potentially career-ending allegations, most notably for senior medical staff, headteachers and legal and FCA-governed professionals.

Debbie regularly undertakes work in respect of proceedings before professional regulators. Her work includes advising and appearing in proceedings before the General Medical Council, the General Dental Council, the General Optical Council, the Nursing & Midwifery Council and the Teachers' Regulation Agency.

She also advises as to Solicitors' professional conduct obligations under the Code of Conduct and in proceedings before the Solicitors Regulation Authority (SRA).

Investigations

Debbie is exceptionally highly regarded for her employment law expertise. However, a significant part of her practice is in conducting independent investigations. In this area, she can fully utilise her pragmatic and user-friendly approach, exceptional witness handling skills, forensic attention to detail, ability to critically analyse the evidence and prepare the highest quality, fully reasoned written reports.

Debbie has extensive experience in this area across a range of sectors including healthcare, education, legal and finance, in both the public and private sectors. She is familiar with regulatory frameworks, and it is not unusual for her investigations to coincide with proceedings before a professional regulator or in some cases, to lead to such referrals.

The subject matter of Debbie's recent instructions has included the following:

- Investigations into the practice of consultant surgeons and other senior healthcare professionals, relating to both patient safety (eg. treatment decisions and surgical competence) and the treatment of other clinicians and support staff)
- Investigation into alleged fraud and falsification of documents in the Education sector
- Investigation into complaints of institutional racism within a Multi-Academy Trust, including the racial profiling of black students
- Investigation into allegations of racism against multiple members of a clinical team in an NHS Hospital
- Investigation into alleged breaches of the FCA regulatory framework by a regulated finance professional
- Investigation into the failures of directors to declare conflicts of interest and/or to comply with establish procurement procedures when awarding contracts to third parties
- Investigation into alleged historic and continuing sexual harassment of females by a male colleague
- Investigation on behalf of a charity as to concerns about the professional probity and conduct of its in-house counsel.

On occasion, Debbie has been asked to present her findings to internal disciplinary and other hearings and has received accolades from all sides for the scrupulous levels of probity, fairness and impartiality she has demonstrated.

Debbie is one of the very few barristers recommended by Chambers and Partners in its new “independent investigations” practice area.
