CRIME

Virginia is regularly instructed to both prosecute and defend in cases at the highest level of complexity where her skills are in demand as a specialist practitioner in the conduct of the most serious and complex sexual allegations including rape, familial and historic offending and child pornography. She is experienced in dealing with sexual allegations involving additional complexities such as the use of intermediaries, parallel Family Court Proceedings and those necessitating the cross examination of children. The increasing feature of social media in such cases and its evidential impact is an area with which Virginia is familiar. The preparation and presentation of applications related to cross examination of sexual history and bad character are routine aspects of her practice. Virginia has substantial experience in advising on and conducting cases with a mental health element, particularly relating to hospital order disposals and trials of issue.

Virginia enjoys strong relationships with her professional clients and is known for her conscientious approach to her practice. She offers a confident and reassuring presence to clients with the sensitivity that is demanded.

Virginia's wider practice includes instruction in cases involving serious offences of violence including murder, child cruelty, arson, death by dangerous driving, firearms and drugs conspiracies.

Virginia is able to accept instructions under the Public Access Scheme.
